Diabetes: Snacking

When you have diabetes you do not usually 'need' to eat snacks unless you have been advised to do so by your dietitian. However if you are hungry in between meals it is important to aim for healthy snacks. Carbohydrate foods will have an effect on your blood sugar levels. Below are some examples of snacks that contain less than 20g of carbohydrate, some of which are also less than 100 calories.

If you eat a snack with a nutrition label then check that total carbohydrate for the portion is less than 20g. The lower the carbohydrate, the smaller the effect on your blood glucose levels will be.

If you are aiming to lose weight, it would be helpful to choose a snack which is both low carbohydrate and contains less than 100 calories. Remember to only reach for snacks between meals if you are feeling physically hungry.
